

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

According to the present invention, an analog evaluation circuit, the digitization and the conversion into physical variables are moved from the higher-order control system into the sensor system, and the control system is connected to this new sensor system through a synchronous high-speed transmission system. This serial real-time sensor interface provides the network capability of the transmission system and also permits simpler cabling.

TELETYPE